DOYLESTOWN.

A rather amusing circumstance has occurred in connection with District Attorney contest in which the Doylestown Intelligencer turns up on the wrong side as usual. The Intelligencer has intimated that Joseph W. Shelly, Esq., is what it was pleased to call the "ring candidate," and that the GAZETTE, having remonstrated with John L. DuBois, Esq., his opponent, for a statement made reflecting upon the leaders of the party, it was incumbent upon it, the Intelligencer, to at once applaud Mr. DuBois and call down the GAZETTE, which it proceeded to do. Day after day the Intelligencer has been notifying the party that Mr. DuBois must be taken care of, much to that gentleman's amusement, for the reason he is against certain leaders is due to the fact that he is an ardent Quay man and believes that the present members of the Assembly should be turned down by the party for their attitude in the recent caucus matter. In other words Mr. DuBois is against any combination in favor of renominating the Assemblymen As the Intelligencer is fighting tooth and nail for the the members of the Legislature, it will be rather interesting to hear what it has to say when it discovers the real position of Mr. DuBois, who, by the way, has not misrepresented his position but who has been applauded by the Intelligencer simply because it assumed that the GAZETTE was against him, which was a red rag to the machine-crazy organ at the county seat. Now if Mr. Shelly is a member of a ring, and Mr. DuBois is against that ring upon the supposition that it is in favor of the very thing the Intelligencer advocates, the organ will have an extremely difficult time to find a roosting place on the District Attorney branch of the political situation.

The County Commissioners have a number of men employed by the day at work upon repairs to the wall about the county prison. It may interest the taxpayer to know that the bill for this work will be pretty large, but the expense will be unavoidable if the wall is to be preserved. The present Board of Commissioners undertook the repairs after they were recommended by Grand Juries upon several occasions. They found the wall in a most deplorable condition, but the defects hidden by the pointing. In fact there are places where the mortar has disappeared entirely. This is shown by the fact that the cement now being poured into the wall from the top in the process of grouting, runs clear to the bottom of the wall, and in many instances has taken an oblique course, coming through the pointing ten or fifteen feet beyond the point at which it is poured into the crevices at the top. At one place 51 buckets of the liquid concrete was used before the cement reached the top. The wall is 1,112 feet square and about 25 feet high, so the statement may be accepted that the repairs will cost considerable, as an immense amount of cement will be required. At one place the wall is cracked from top to bottom and will need to be rebuilt. Even the stones used are rotten at many places. In one stone the sparrows have actually burrowed out a nesting place eight inches deep and about four inches in circumference. The old mortar crumbles at the touch, and with a stout jackknife a prisoner could soon work his way through the wall at several different points. The jail was built at a cost of about $97,000 by a Democratic Board of Commissioners, and the work was done by Henry D. Livezey, of Doylestown, now deceased, and James Flack, the present clerk of Town Council. The condition of the wall was such that the present Commissioners were unable to find a man willing to bid on the work, as it was impossible to tell what labor and material would be required. Bucks county has long boasted of having the finest jail in the State, and it was fair to look upon, but the present work has disclosed the fact that the pointing of the wall covered a very inferior job.

The Doylestown public schools will open on Monday next. The directors have elected a fine corps of teachers, most of them instructors who have taught here for years, and there is every prospect for a successful term. Prof. A. S. Martin is principal of the schools.

TULLYTOWN.

The article in last Thursday's Daily Republican, which has been sown broadcast throughout the country, has occasioned much more mirth here than its author evidently intended. Among other things the Republican says, "They" (the ex-Assemblymen) "have many hundreds of letters, written by Bucks county Republicans, asking them to vote in opposition to Mr. Quay's re-election and only a very few requests to vote for him." And again the Republican saith, "The only matter of difference is as to their vote in opposition to the re-election to M. S. Quay to the Senate of the United States."

This is rather amusing as the principal cause of the objection to the renomination of the present assemblymen is not that they did not vote for ex-Senator Quay, but that they refused to go into the caucus and thus broke away from the Republican party by failing to concur in one of the fundamental rules of the party. This all happened before any of the so-called numerous letters were written, as the rank and file of the Republican party in Bucks did not know at that time where the three ex-assemblymen stood.

As to the second proposition it is so palpably false that there is a vague suspicion that this was written at the dictation of some very much interested party. More truthfully this sentence would read thus: The only matter of difference is that they refused to attend a regularly called caucus of the Republican Senators and Assemblymen to nominate a United States Senator.

This is the whole case against them and sufficient to make stalwarts doubt the Republicanism of the present members.

If a Republican is nominated by the Republican party and afterwards elected and refuses to attend a party caucus, does he still have a claim on that party after failure to observe its rules and regulations; is he a Republican or a bushwacker?

The present Republican Assemblymen were not expected to do more than go into the Republican caucus and vote as their consciences dictated. Instead of this they stayed out of the caucus and voted as Dave Martin dictated. While these three men are crying against the Republicans of Philadelphia running the Jamestown convention, let them come out and tell honestly how they came to refuse to go into the Republican caucus at Harrisburg.

If, as the article says this is done in the interest of harmony and in accord with the wishes of the majority of the Republicans of Bucks county, one cannot but echo the sentiments expressed by a prominent leader of the middle district, "If this is harmony, may the Goddess of the Republican party deliver us from discord."

On every side one hears the wish expressed, even by the strongest supporters of the present system, that we now find the delegate system. Dispite the regret at the discordant elements now at work in the Republican party in Bucks, there is no doubt but that had we the delegate system which the GAZETTE so ably championed, we would certainly settle this assemblymen question as the majority of the Republicans wish, and we would also do it without the aid of any but our own party.

On Monday evening the William Penn Mutual Building and Loan Association held their regular annual meeting at which the following officers and directors were elected: President, Henry Lovett; Secretary, B. Shareholders were pleased with the announcement made by the secretary that the stock in the past year had increased six and five tenths per cent.

At the annual neighbors picnic, which was held on Saturday, the 18th inst., on William Leigh's lawn, there were about 150 people present. The picnickers spent the day in boating, tennis and other games until the showers started when they were offered the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Leigh's large house where they enjoyed themselves thoroughly. There were present guests from Trenton, Bristol, Langhorne, Morrisville, Hulmeville, Fallsington, Emilie, Newportville, Crosswicks and Birmingham, N. J.

We hear that two of our young citizens are seriously considering the advisability of enlisting for China.

We understand that Frank Duffield will furnish all crossing stones and iron slag for the streets, being the lowest bidder.

The Hulmeville correspondent thinks that Hulmeville will have to hustle to keep up with our one year old borough. She will find Attleboro a lively youngster.

Council held their regular meeting on Friday evening, August 17, at the school house. Sidewalk ordinance passed second reading. The treasurer was authorized to place the second loan of $2700 for placing iron slag on the graded streets. Each property holder is to put down his own curbing of either wood or stone. The amount due the contractor for grading DeHaven avenue was passed Council. Quite a number of important matters were voted upon and passed.

If the average editor were to sum all the inducements held out he would a millionaire. If he ran a paper in accord with the popular notion he would soon be in the almshouse. Is he published half the items sent him he would be in jail one-half the time and in the hospital the other half.

A large boiler on the dairy farm of William Burgess exploded with a loud crash at about 7 40 o'clock on Thursday morning last, blowing the smoke stack about fifty yards from the boiler house and completely demolishing the boiler and engine room. No one was injured, although William Burgess, Jr., narrowly escaped serious injury, being but a few feet away when the explosion occurred. The boiler was used for the purpose of forcing water into the dwelling and the dairy stables.

The Morrisville's defeated the strong Y. M. C. A. team of Trenton, in the second game of the series for the handsome Gunson silver loving cup, on the home grounds on Saturday afternoon last, by the score of 8 to 2. By this victory Captain Potts' red men again retain the cup for another year, having won two out of three in the series for the same. The feature of the game was the exceptionally fine pitching of George Justice, who allowed the opposing team but two hits, and who also contributed largely to the run getting of the locals, cracking out a corking double and two singles. The general playing of all the members of the home team was highly commendable, much vim and energy in their work being displayed by all. For the defeated team the fielding of Boswell and Travers is deserving of special mention, the latter accepting ten of his eleven chances at short field, some of which were very difficult ones to handle. Owing to the inclemency of the weather the game was not as largely attended as it might have been had clearer weather prevailed, there being but about 600 persons present.

A man talks about owning his business. But, as a matter of fact his business owns him. His whole life is regulated by the demands of the business. The time at which he rises, his breakfast hour, the time given to meals, are all determined by business obligations. He rushes through lunch because he "can't spare the time from business" to eat leisurely. He won't take a rest because he is needed at the store or office. He is in fact an absolute slave to business. The results which follow this slavery are to be seen on every hand. Men dyspeptic, irritable, nervous, with drawn faces, and hollow eyes, sit at the desk or stand behind the counter until they collapse in a fit of sickness, or are taken away by heart failure. Those who cannot escape the exactions of business will find a friend in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the stomach, increases the action of the blood-making glands, increasing the vitality and physical vigor. It makes men strong and prevents those business break downs which so often terminate fatally.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION IN BUCKS COUNTY.

After mature deliberation by the active and leading Republicans of Bucks county the conclusion has been reached that it would be unwise and politically profitless to engage in a bitter factional war in the county for the purpose of defeating the re-nomination of the present members of the Assembly.

While it is acknowledged that there is considerable sentiment prevailing in the county in favor of the re-election of former Senator M. S. Quay, and while it is claimed that there is a preponderance in numbers of active working Republicans who stand ready to espouse the cause of the Beaver statesman, it has been argued and the fact clearly established, that at the present time, even though a successful fight were waged against the present members, the result would not save Mr. Quay from the certain defeat which the next Legislature has in store for him.

The results of the recent primary elections have sounded the death knell of Colonel Quay's election to the United States Senate. The State Senate, in all human probability, will be organized by his political opponents and when the time comes to take a joint ballot for the election of a United States Senator Mr. Quay cannot hope to receive enough votes to make him as formidable a candidate as he was at the close of the session of 1899.

Undoubtedly a Senator will be chosen. A compromise must be effected wherein Mr. Quay, his friends, and his antagonists will come to an agreement and fill the Senatorial vacancy now existing.

In view of these facts, which are apparent to those who have a proper conception of the political situation in the Commonwealth, it has been forcibly asked by the men who for years have worked for the success of the Republican party in this county, Why should the Republicans of Bucks county engage in a fierce and bitter war which would disrupt the party from Durham to Bensalem and from the Montgomery line to the river? What would be gained in the end? The election of the entire Democratic ticket would be one of the first results. The expenditure of large corruption funds by both factions would be another. The estrangement of friends and the loss of the county to the Democrats for several years to come would also inevitably follow.

The very men who now counsel peace and harmony are the men who have for years labored ceaselessly for the supremacy of the Republican party in this county. They are the men who battled steadily against great odds and finally assisted in swinging the county from its Democratic moorings and anchored her in the harbor of Republicanism. To them and to all true party men Republicanism is greater than any one man or set of men. It is of greater moment to keep the party supreme in Bucks county than it is to be the sentimental leaders of a forlorn hope. And for that reason every effort should be made to preserve and strengthen the party lines rather than divide the ranks and thus permit the Democrats to step into the breach and walk away with a victory.

By a party custom which has prevailed for years the present members are entitled to an uncontested renomination, but they have caused antagonism to such action solely because of their attitude in the matter of the election of a United States Senator. Upon all other questions their records are in strict harmony with the wishes of all of their constituents. Because they did not contribute to the election of Senator Quay they have been made the target for sharp criticism.

The GAZETTE has always been a staunch supporter and friend of Senator Quay, and today would do anything which would honestly contribute to his cause. But will the defeat of the present members aid Senator Quay? We think not. The Beaver statesman is a Senatorial impossibility. How such a condition has been brought about is not up for discussion here, the fact alone remains with which to contend. That Colonel Quay has been retired is one of the fortunes of political warfare.

Although Quay's candidacy is beyond redemption, there is a political combination of bad repute that is hovering about ready to feed upon the remains of the Quay campaign. It is that crowd, composed of Boise Penrose, Israel Durham and others, whose unsavory reputations have stenched the Commonwealth, that is insisting that the stalwart Republicans of Bucks county shall tear the local party into shreds for the gratification of the Philadelphia contracting combine. There is no question about that. Penrose, Durham, et al., are fighting in the name of Quay, at the same time knowing full well that they cannot and dare not stand upon their own bottoms. They know that Senator Quay cannot be re-elected, but wish to dictate his succession and thereby retain their hold upon the distribution of patronage, and gratify their own selfish ambitions.

That Senator Penrose, Insurance Commissioner Durham and others have entered into a combination to become the residuary legatees of Quay's political estate is an open secret. Charles F. Ettla, who for many years and until a few days ago, was in the confidence of the State organization, and who for sixteen years was an attache of the Republican State Committee, in a signed statement declares that "the plot has already been hatched to make Governor Stone the caucus nominee for the United States Senate to succeed Quay. The plan is to elevate Stone to the Senatorship and then Elkin is to be supported for succession to Stone. Penrose is a party to this scheme because both Stone and Elkin have given him their personal promise that they will stand for him for re-election upon the expiration of his present term. This agreement was signed, sealed and delivered immediately after the United States Senate disposed of the Quay case. It was made at the Hotel Walton, in Philadelphia, in the presence of Messrs. Elkin, Durham, Stone and Penrose."

It is the above coterie of practical politicians that would reap any benefit from a fight against the present members of the Assembly in Bucks county, and it is because of that fact that the Republicans of this district refuse to carry the burden which an inter-necine warfare would entail.

The above is a fair resume of the political situation in Bucks county, setting forth the reasons why the friends of Senator Quay will make no fight against the renomination of the present members of the Assembly.

The Schwenksville Item last week entered upon its 24th year. It was founded by Rev. N. B. Grubb, of Philadelphia, in 1877, ... has been under the present management ... over seventeen years. Ed tor I. H... and man has brought the Item to a point ... it is unexcelled in country journalism. The great amount of news which is weekly gathered, condensed and classified, represents a great deal of intelligent labor. The Item has our congratulations.

Joseph W. Shelly, Esq., of Doylestown, is conducting a quiet and dignified campaign for the Republican nomination for District Attorney. Mr. Shelly is one of the ablest junior members of the Bucks county bar and has a host of friends throughout the county who will be in Doylestown on September 3 to give testimony of their friendship. There is probably no Republican in the county who is or has been a harder worker for Republican success than Mr. Shelly. For several years he has been the efficient chairman of the Republican county committee and has been in direct charge of a number of campaigns which have resulted so satisfactorily to the party. It has been the custom to advance the county chairman to the office of District Attorney. It was so in the case of Messers Swartley, Stout, Eastman and others. None of the latter men worked more assiduously for the success of the party than has Mr. Shelly, neither were any of them more ably equipped to fill the office which they held and which Mr. Shelly now seeks.

The lower end of Bucks county is practically a unit for the nomination of Mr. Shelly and his many friends declare he will be high man on the county ticket on election day.

Robinson was Dazzled by the Gold Brick

Hatboro Spirit.

The friends of Senator Quay, who control the Republican organization in this county, have decided to nominate five straight ticket Assemblymen, who will go into the Senatorial caucus and abide by its decision.

They are strong enough in the county to do this, and really cannot be blamed for taking this position when the facts are considered. Two years ago they allowed the anti Quay people to place two Assemblymen on the ticket, the result on election day proving they had been sold a gold brick. The anti-Quay people throughout the county voted for their own candidates on the Republican ticket and three Democrats. The result was that a solid anti-Quay delegation represented Montgomery county at Harrisburg during the last session.

Having secured nothing out of the last election when they compromised with t anti-Quay people, the organization Republicans have decided to go it alone this fall, knowing that the result cannot possibly be worse for them and feeling confident that it may be much better.

Moser Scents Battle.

Collegeville Independent.

The present programme of the Regulars is to nominate only Regulars for legislative and county offices, and give no quarter to the Insurgents. The latter in turn propose (if fusion fails, as it will) to put up a whole ticket as their own that will be as straight as an unwarped yardstick. After which both sides intend to make both hide and hair fly! And then what? After it is all over they can come together and congratulate each other upon their conspicuous success in clubbing each other, while the Democratic brethren are returning to the promised land of milk and honey. Interesting situation, is it not?

Plain Talk by an "Anti."

North Wales Record.

Fusion is a bait to catch the unwary. There is no cohesive force behind it except greed for office, and the folly of asking voters to sink party differences, to drop past quarrels and principles in a vociferous demand for "Filipino independence" is not realized by those who seek to promote such a political alliance. The Montgomery voter has a wholesome distrust of political unions reared on no tangible community of purpose or opinion, and he is only convinced that the motly combination of interests headed by Fusionists is only a coalition for office and office only.

Ready for any Kind of Fray.

Jenkintown Times-Chronicle.

It looks like there is going to be a great deal of mud slinging in this county this fall among those who manifest an interest in politics. We are really sorry about it, but feel that we must give vent to our convictions, and we are in absolute harmony with the majority. If the majority rule would not be maintained this would be a sorry world. There are always people who are at war with the dominant influences, however, and this is only spice in life.

Condemns the Method.

A correspondent writes to the GAZETTE complaining of the manner in which Pond street is being repaired. The writer says; "I am told that Pond street, between Mulberry and Walnut, is an example of 'how not to do it.' The Street Commissioner has been trying to demonstrate that he can roll stone with a steam roller without wetting. At least that is my information. The town cannot afford to stand such foolery."

Mr. Winder was one of the most efficient postmasters Bristol ever had and appears to be popular with all classes of citizens. He is now engaged in the wholesale liquor business. With two candidates for the Assembly in Bristol there is promise of lively times ahead.

Drowned at Morrisville.

A boy named Davis was with a party of pickickers at Morrisville island on Sunday last. The party stopped on the creek near Robert Brown's farm. The boy with others, partially clad, went in the creek to swim, and by some means got his feet fast in the mud and was drowned before assistance could reach him.

After his body was recovered it was taken to the house of Dr. I. N. Woodman, of Morrisville, by an Indian in the employ of Mr. Brown. Dr. Woodman got out the water that the boy had breathed into his lungs, and then by the means of artificial respiration, set up a pulse. It was noticed that the boy was breathing, when he was sent home.

There was an evidence of sinking, however, and an hour after he arrived at his home he died.

Death of John K. Hulme.

John Kirkbride Hulme, one of the best known residents of Tioga, Philadelphia, died suddenly on Friday night at his home, No. 2110 Tioga street, of acute indigestion.

Mr. Hulme was born near Bristol, this county, July 8, 1844. He was a son of Samuel Hulme, a well known Bucks county farmer, and member of the Society of Friends.

When a young man John went to Philadelphia and made his home with an aunt, Mrs Elizabeth Richardson. Here he learned the dry goods business, which he followed for a number of years, when he was appointed a collector of the Reading Railway, a position he held up to the time of his death. Mr. Hulme was for several terms a member of the old Twenty-eighth Ward Sectional School Board, and for most of the time its Secretary.

In 1868 Mr. Hulme was married to Rebecca F. Brown, of Bucks county who, with their only child, Frederick G. Brown, survives, as does his aged mother, who has during the present month lost two sons by death. Samuel Hulme, who resided with her on Ontario street, Philadelphia, died August 9.

Bucks County Man in Trouble.

Joseph Mathieu, of Langhorne Manor, member of the leather firm of J. P. Mathieu & Co., was held in $500 bail by Magistrate Eisenbrown, of Philadelphia, on Monday, on a charge of assault and battery, made by H. W. Geshwind, President of the Windsor Paving Company. Mr. Geshwind alleged that he was struck upon the nose, whose cartilages were broken by the blow.

According to the testimony, Geshwind's firm was a sub-contractor under Architects Edward M. Hales and Walter F. Ballinger, employed in the rebuilding of a portion of the Mathieu plant, destroyed by fire several months ago. Mr. Mathieu was not satisfied with the progress of the work, and told Geshwind so one afternoon. Geshwind made a remark that Mathieu did not know what he was talking about, and was almost immediately struck upon the nose. Messrs. Hales and Ballinger were witnesses of the assault and corroborated the testimony of Geshwind. Mathieu stated at the hearing that he was [illegible]ged by the remark made by Geshwind, [illegible]en assaulted him.

How to Pack Eggs for Long Keeping.

The yolk of the egg spoils much quicker than the white. For this reason it is important that the yolk should be surrounded with a layer of the white. If the egg is placed on the side, or large end, the heavy yolk will settle to the bottom and come in contact with the shell, which admits the air. If it is placed on the small end it will always have a layer of white between it and the shell. Eggs absorb odors easily, therefore only odorless material should be used when packing them.

A New Mission Society.

Members of the Wesleyan Methodist Society, of Philadelphia, are now occupying the Friends' school house on Cedar street, Bristol, where they have established a mission. The founder of the Wesleyan Methodist Society is General Superintendent Clements. The work has spread under his guidance and many missions have been established.

Bristol has been thoroughly visited by two young Itinerants and two Deaconesses. These people have been trained for this work under the guidance of the General Superintendent. The members of the society who are now located in Bristol inform the GAZETTE that they intend having a number of speakers here. The opening sermon on August 19 was preached by Superintendent Clements. Tonight Rev. John Rannie, an ex-priest converted from Romanism, a native of Montreal, will preach; Friday evening—Deaconess E. Keller; Saturday—John Clements. Next week there will be different speakers from Philadelphia, after which it is expected to have regular Sunday services and weekly prayer meetings.

The Gazette's Type-Setting Machine.

The new Simplex type-setting machine purchased by the GAZETTE has been set up and an expert operator arrived yesterday from New York who will give instructions in its use. The machine is a wonderful piece of mechanism and is the latest improved product of the Unitype Company's factory at Manchester, Conn. Four hundred pounds of aluminum alloy type, of a special make for the machine was received today, from which the paper will hereafter be printed.

Oliver J. Houck, one of the Unitype Company's experts, will remain here until the GAZETTE's operators are entirely familiar with the workings of the machine.

With the aid of the Simplex type setting in the GAZETTE office will be revolutionized and the paper will be brought strictly up to date.

The Simplex is operated by a key-board similar to that of a typewriter. The type, after being used, is automatically distributed.

It is expected that the machine will be in full working order on Monday, and the GAZETTE's patrons are cordially invited to visit the office and witness its operation.

NORRISTOWN CORRESPONDENCE.

NORRISTOWN, PA., Aug. 20, 1900.

While we are reveling in rain and rejoicing that the hot spell has been drowned and our crops have been saved, the State of Kansas—all except the three eastern counties—is languishing in drought and the corn crop is in peril. What is Kansas without corn? Her yield in 1899 was estimated at 225,000,000 bushels, but this year it is estimated will fall to 75,000,000. What a falling off is there? Our country is so great, its climate so varied and its productions so diversified, that in the aggregate and on the whole, the yield in manufacturing or farming or mining productions will always be in abundance and above that of smaller nations, confined in latitude and longitude, and limited to the temperature of a climate neither so variable nor so vigorous as our own; but where the scourge does fall it worketh incalculable loss, injury and distress upon the individuals of the afflicted section.

There ought to be organized by the agriculturists throughout the Union a mutual insurance association against such calamities, embracing the whole country; the tax on each farmer for such purposes would be infintessimal and never felt, yet see what blessings would flow from such an organized power of benevolence. It would be a brotherhood of the yeomanry of America of much more actual and practical value that all the Granges from Alaska to the Gulf of Mexico. If it could be done, it ought to be accomplished by an Act of Congress, and thus a harmless tariff for internal and home protection would be effective for the people at home and never felt. The only trouble about this latter method would be that a horde of officers might follow who would fatten on the proceeds and make fortunes out of the misfortunes of the people in the modus operandi.

The great Texas flood ruined thousands of farmers, and storms have devastated whole towns and districts rendering many once happy homes desolate, as in Johnstown a few years ago, and many honest and industrious people homeless. Men, bad men, will somehow or other get their work in whenever the Government undertakes to run a public institution. The old scandals about the public works in Pennsylvania led to a revolution in politics, and the recent revelations in the running of the postoffice in the West Indies show how dangerous it is for the Government to manage even those affairs which cannot otherwise be effectually carried on in a big nation. Hamlet was not so crazy after all when he said, "Your worm is your only emperor for diet; we fat all creatures else to fat us, and we fat ourselves for maggots; your fat king and your lean beggar, is but variable service; two dishes, but one table; that's the end. A man may fish with the worm that hath eat of king, and eat of the fish that hath fed of that worm."

When we get through with wars, with family brawls in politics, with broken speeches and with all demagogues we will perhaps have time to devote to some measures for the alleviation of the poor and distressed, wherever found in this land of liberty.

The Dreyfus case, which caused so great a sensation and concern in France and attracted the attention of the reading world, has just been re-enacted in Georgetown, Ky., in the political trial and conviction of Charles Powers, who on Saturday was found guilty of being accessory before the fact, to the killing of Mr. Goebel, who claimed the seat to which Gov. Taylor was elected and into which he was duly installed. The jury in that State have the power to name the sentence, and they could have ordered Charles Powers hung or they could order him imprisoned for life. We of the North knew that the jury would convict, just as we knew that the Goebel Legislature would count Gov. Taylor out. When party spirit runs so high that men lose their reason and all sense of justice is lost, the rights of man are in danger of dethronement and freedom has fled from the land. France saw the error of the course of her arbitrary court, and Dreyfus was pardoned, but there is a man in the office of Governor in Kentucky who is a creature of the same power which deposed Governor Taylor, and no pardon can be expected from that source. This will be a notable case and note my prediction it will go down in history as marking a crisis in the bloody era of the renaissance of the cruel years of the ante-bellum days. There will be a recrudescence of the songs that were sung in 1861, "John Brown's body lies a mouldering in the ground, but his soul goes marching on."

Rightly to be great is not to stir without great argument; but when all that man holds sacred, life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, are endangered, it moves a mighty mass of human wrath, and compels men to arise and strike for the defence of the right and the cause of the wronged. Powers may rest in jail, exiled from his home, and deprived of his liberty, but more true joy Marcellus in his exile feels than Cæsar with a Senate at his heels.

In local politics we have the same old manœuvres going on; men of large professions and little deeds working for places they are incompetent to fill, and schemers who are willing to sacrifice even the Presidency for place and profit. Whether there will be an unholy and unnatural alliance between the free traders and pro-slavery men on the one side and the ambitious traders of the dissatisfied Republicans on the other, makes little difference to the loyal and the true; they will stand by the colors of the party that saved our Union from dissolution, abolished slavery and made the United States an everlasting name. If men choose to desert their flag they must expect to receive the opprobrium due to their desertion. Traitors are sometimes successful, they have the physical power to play the Brutus, but mankind will hold their names in infamy. One can respect a Democrat who by birth or education, or conviction, holds to his opposition to the Republican party, but oh for a tongue to curse the slave

Whose treason like a deadly light
Comes over the councils of the brave
To blast them in their hour of might.

Resolutions of Respect.

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Bristol Improvement Company was held at the office of the company on Wednesday, August 22d, 1900, at 2 o'clock p. m. Present—Messrs. A. B. Headley, B. F. Gilkeson, Charles Leedom, W. V. Leech and G. A. Shoemaker. On motion Mr. B. F. Gilkeson was called to the chair.

After a sympathetic statement by the secretary of the fact that this meeting was made necessary by the decease of Mr. John Burton, the late President of the company, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

The Board of Directors of the Bristol Improvement Company desire to place on record their appreciation of the services of the late President of this company and their deep sense of his loss. By the lamented death of John Burton this company is deprived of the services and active interest of one who has been a most faithful member of the Directory since 1882, and President since 1893. To the matters that fell to his duty in the management of the company's affairs, he gave that careful and earnest attention that was so characteristic of him. His sterling qualities, which endeared him to all with whom he came in contact, causes his death to be felt by the members of this Board as a personal bereavement, and they sympathize deeply with the community at large, and with his family to whom they offer their tenderest condolence and earnestly invoke for them the support of higher consolation.

Subsequently, Amos B. Headley, of Tullytown, was elected President of the Board of Directors, and Andrew Shaffer, of Bristol township, was elected a Director, both of which positions were made vacant by the death of Mr. Burton.

Basket Ball.

The National Basket Ball League held a meeting at Green's Hotel, Philadelphia, on Saturday, to make arrangements for the coming season. In the absence of the president, Mr. Neill, of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club, was elected chairman, and W. E. Morgenweck, of Camden, was elected secretary. Mr. Fogel's resignation being sent to the meeting, it was decided to lay it over for the present. Burlington, N. J., made application for a franchise through J. F. Shinn, but owing to objections offered by Bristol, the application was laid over until the next meeting. The members present were Messrs. Morgenweck and Austermuhl, of Camden; James McMurray, of Millville; Frank Smith, of Trenton; J. F. Neill, of Pennsylvania Bicycle Club; W. A. Lorimer, of Bristol. The meeting adjourned to meet again at Trenton, on Wednesday, August 29, at 10 a. m, sharp. The prospects for an eight club circuit are very encouraging and the League's prospects are very bright.

Buy Coal Quick.

The extensive threatened strike in the coal regions and proposed advance in September may materially affect coal. So hand in your orders to W. F. KIND WORDS EXPRESSED BY THE GAZETTE'S CONTEMPORARIES.

Below are reprinted the notices which appeared in the columns of our Bucks and Montgomery county exchanges incident to the occasion of the GAZETTE's twenty-seventh birthday. To the brethren we return expressions of utmost appreciation for the evidences of good-will which they have extended. That each and every one of them may enjoy the fullest measure of prosperity is ever the wish of the publishers of the GAZETTE.

Clean and Sprightly.

Conshohocken Recorder.

The Bristol Gazette celebrates its twenty-eighth birthday by adding a type-setting machine to its equipment. The Gazette is one of the cleanest and sprightliest of weeklies.

Our Hat is Off, Col. Sellers.

Doylestown Republican.

The sprightly Bristol Gazette has just entered upon its twenty-eight volume, and is proud of the fact, as well it may be. The Gazette has within a year or two had new life put into it and has been greatly improved in its appearance as well as in the volume of its news. The Gazette's Republicanism cannot be improved. That is "the best there is." The Republican congratulates its down-county contemporary on its anniversary.

Lansdale Reporter.

The Bristol Gazette, one of our brightest Bucks county exchanges, has celebrated its 28th anniversary, and particularizes the event by introducing a Simplex type-setting machine. In biblical lore the mention of Thomas suggests doubt and uncertainty, but there is no uncertainty about Editor Thomas, nor doubt that the Gazette is getting there with both feet.

The esteemed Bristol Gazette celebrates its twenty-eighth birthday by adding a type-setting machine to its equipment.

Improved in Patronage and Appearance

The Bristol Gazette, published by Jesse O. Thomas & Sons, now entering upon its twenty-eighth year, has put in a Simplex type-setting machine. This paper has lately considerably improved in patronage and personal appearance, and as a local newspaper is forging well to the front.

A Bright and Newsy Paper.

Schwenksville Item.

The Bucks county Gazette, published by the Thomases, at Bristol, was 27 years old last week. It is a bright newsy paper and deserves the success it has attained. A new Simplex type-setting machine has been added to its equipment.

Thank You, Brother Addison.

Hatfield Invincible.

Shows Evidence of Growth.

Souderton Independent.

With last week's issue the Bucks County Gazette, published at Bristol by Jesse O. Thomas and Sons, started on its 28th annual volume. The paper has shown evidence of growth in the past year and the announcement that a Simplex type-setting machine has been installed tends to confirm publishers statement that never before has the Gazette been in so prosperous a condition The Independent hereby congratulates and sincerely hopes that the Gazette may remain in its present prosperous condition.

Clayton is Voluble.

Jenkintown Times-Chronicle

The Bristol Gazette has entered upon its 28th volume Its columns show a combination of vigor and vim, fancy and force, perspicuity and perspicacity, and with these characteristics the Thomases, pere and fils, should exercise a wonderful power in Bucks county's only seaport town.

Editor Johnson's Criticism.

North Wales Record.

The Bristol (Bucks county) Gazette has entered upon its 28th volume. The Gazette is an excellent local paper, and has a way of saying things peculiarly its own. It calls a spade a spade, a boss a boss. It has courage—sometimes a little slow—but, like heavy artillery, it does effective work when it gets in line. More such sturdy journalism would bring about much needed reforms in this country.

Opinion of a Bryanite.

Hatboro Journal.

The Bristol (Bucks conty) Gazette has passed its 27th milestone. The Gazette starts on its 28th annual volume with a new type-setting machine. The paper is a clean, neat sheet, with the local columns well supplied with news, and according to its own statements is growing more prosperous as the years roll by. The editorial page shows good management, and is wide awake in thought and fearless when criticising others who may be adverse with their views—while the managers of the Gazette may be likened somewhat unto game in a wet time, sleeping with one eye open and easily disturbed. The paper is a live, up-to-date weekly issue.

The Veteran Salutes the Cadet.

Doylestown Intelligencer.

With this week's issue the Bristol Gazette starts on its 28th annual volume. The paper has shown evidences of growth during the past year and the announcement that a type-setting machine will be installed within a few days would tend to confirm the publishers' statement that never before has the Gazette been in so prosperous a condition. The Intelligencer from its standpoint of ninety-six years' service in Bucks county to Bucks county readers extends hearty congratulations to its younger contemporary of the seaport town.

Not Quite the Oldest.

Lansdale Republican.

The Bristol GAZETTE is now forging along in the 28th year of its existence. The GAZETTE is the oldest paper in the Bucks county metropolis and more newsy and crisper editorially than ever. In fact, during the past year or two it seems to have taken a new lease on life.

Bristol Gun Club Shoot.

The fifth shoot for the gold medal was held by the Bristol Gun Club on Burlington Island on Saturday afternoon.

The match was close and exciting, John Allen winning by one bird. This is Allen's second consecutive victory, he having won the match last month, defeating the next highest contestant by one bird. He will keep possession of the medal for another month, and if successful in winning the next match will retain permanent possession. This is the second member of the club who has won two consecutive victories. So evenly matched are several members that the outcome of the next shoot is uncertain.

American Association rules governed the contest and the conditions were "known angles." Each contestant shot at 20 birds in series of 5. The score: John Allen 16, J. McLaughlin 15, J. Gamble 15, H. McLaughlin 14, G. Buckley 13, J. Schoffield 12, C. Pursell 11.

After the main event a sweepstake match took place betw[illegible], H. McLaughlin and Pursell [illegible] participant shot at 5 birds, Pur[illegible] breaking all his birds.

COUNTING A MINUTE.

NOT EASY TO TELL OFF SIXTY SECONDS ACCURATELY.

A Detective's Story of a Gambler Who Had a Tiny Watch Set in a Cameo Ring and Who Used to Work the Passengers on Ocean Steamers.

"What time is it?" asked a man who was riding with a detective in a cab the other day.

The detective pushed an almost invisible lever on the side of the setting of a large cameo ring that he wore on the third finger of his left hand. Then he placed his left hand at his left ear and listened for a moment.

"Seventeen minutes past 3," he replied.

"Now you can go ahead and tell me about that," said the man who was riding with the detective. The man had watched the detective's method of ascertaining the time with interest. "I can see that that big ring of yours is a repeating watch, of course. Let's have the rest of it."

"This ring and repeating watch combined," said the detective, "belonged to one of the most notorious of the swagger gang of short card players who used to work the ocean steamers. He's been dead for ten years now, and as his family are pretty good people, I needn't mention his name. He was the champion of his class, though.

"This card sharper had this ring I'm wearing made in Switzerland for a purpose. He made many thousands of dollars with it. His game was this way: When a gang of men on one of the steamers on which he was a passenger would get together in the smoking room for cardroom and get to betting on the revolutions of the screw, on the weather, on the day's voyage, on any old thing, he would gently butt in with a crack to the effect that there wasn't one man out of a hundred that could properly count off a minute—that is, that could exactly, or anything like exactly, apprehend the passage of 60 seconds.

"This would lead to a discussion, and the sharper would attempt to prove his contempt by referring to the fact that detectives of prizefights are able to tell in seconds over a prostrate fighter something like accuracy. Then the sharper would suggest that all put more chaw on this point, and would put a chip into a pool, say, of the whole bundle to be walked by the man in the pool who came nearest to a minute. The [illegible] to bite.

"[illegible] ant to experiment, you [illegible] come one hold a watch [illegible] you try to count a minute. If you come any nearer than five seconds to the minute without plenty of practice, you may call yourself a man with a pretty good idea of time. There are few things harder to do than to agree with the second hand of a watch in counting 60 seconds.

"Well, they'd all put into the pool, and the disinterested chap'ud be brought to hold the ticker, and each man's count would be set down on a slip of paper. As the man who suggested the pool, the card shark would modestly wait until they'd all had their trials before he essayed to count his minute. He'd rest his head in his left hand and watch them amusedly while they tried to make an even up minute with the watch, and it never happened that any of 'em got within better than three seconds of it, one way or the other. They usually was at least that much shy or overdue.

"Resting his head in his left hand, then, this crafty, cheerful worker of the steamers would wait for his turn, and then, with this almost inaudible but ample enough bit of a ticker close to his ear, would wade in and count 60 seconds almost. He never did it exactly to the dot, because he didn't want any suspicion naturally, but he almost always got under the wire a winner by a second or so from all the rest of the bunch in the pool. As I say, he won thousands at this scheme, and only one of the victims ever suspected that he had an inside way of keeping tab on his minutes.

"He worked this trick once too often. Oddly enough, a Scotland Yard man got next to the game. Now, Scotland Yard men are, as a rule, pretty obtuse and opaque and a few other things like that, but this Scotland Yard man was an exception to the rule, and he tumbled to the old sharper's little stall. The Scotland Yard detective was in a minute guessing order for a £5 note himself, and the attitude of the short card man in counting a gigantic exercise 60 seconds struck him as [illegible] somewhat peculiar. He didn't say anything right then, but after the short card man had gone out, after gathering up the [illegible] he mentioned his suspicions to a number of other passengers. When the short card player returned to the card game the Scotland Yard man, sure that he was right, walked up behind the sharper, who was sitting down, and suddenly grabbed his left wrist, saying:

"'Let's have an inspection of that ring.'

"The sharper promptly jumped to his feet and locked the Scotland Yard man [illegible]. Wagenknight was out of the bag, however, and all the men in the compartment who'd been in the minute guessing pool rallied upon the sharper to show up the ring. With a very much aggrieved air the shark pulled off the ring on his left forefinger and threw it on the table, and in a very well-mannered manner that the [illegible] Mr. Wagenknight feels highly amusing that there has been an attempt [illegible] laid it on to rob him with the affair. [illegible] and broke open the cameo ring, [illegible] It will be remembered that see inside of the pitchfork, a duplicate—as a Kansas City plate—of his watch [illegible] him for just such an emergency. The Scotland Yard man got in enough, of course, and the shark was ordered to the favor of all the men and was able to pose before them as an outraged man for the remainder of the voyage. But he never tried the game again. His short card man quit the steamers with a competency led a square life some years previous to his cashing in. When he was on his last bed, [illegible] for me—I'd known him for a long time—and handed me this ring, said he [illegible] to leave his children any old gold [illegible] served him in his former calling. It's a fine bit of work [illegible] about $1,000. I've worn it [illegible] for a number of years now."—New York Sun.

Whom to Wake.

Here is a story which was told by Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson at a Twentieth Century club in Boston. A country clergyman called on Henry Ward Beecher and asked his advice about what to do with persons who go to sleep in church—something which had become quite prevalent in his congregation. The plan Beecher listened very attentively, admitted that it was serious and then said: "When I first came to Plymouth church, I thought about this problem, and I will tell you about the plan I decided upon. The sexton was given strict orders that if he saw any one asleep in my congregation he should at once go straight into the pulpit and shake up the minister."

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

"I have been thinking of writing to you for some time," writes Mrs. W. P. Benson, of Maxton, Robeson Co., N. C., "to let you know what a wonderful thing Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery did for my little boy. He was taken with indigestion when he was a year and a half old, and he was under the doctor's treatment for five long years. We spent all we made for doctor's bills, and it did no good. He could not eat anything only a little milk and cracker, and sometimes even this would make him sick, and he got very weak; could not sit up all day, and I gave up all hope of his ever getting any better. Looking over one of your books I noticed Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery recommended for indigestion. We bought some and gave to our boy. Two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cured him. He is well as can be, and can eat anything that he wants and it does not hurt him. He has not been sick a day since, and it has been three years since he took your medicine. I pray that God will always bless you and your medicine."

STARTLED THE WATCHERS.

A Weird Incident That Occurred at the Bier of Schopenhauer.

A very curious story by Guy de Maupassant has come to light in Paris. According to Maupassant's manuscript, the story was told to him by a German who, with a friend, spent the night in Schopenhauer's funeral chamber. The great German philosopher had died during the day, and his two admirers prepared to watch over his remains during the dark hours.

Said the German: "Schopenhauer had just died, and we two had decided to stay in his room until morning. Two lights were burning on the table. At midnight our watch began, and after the two others who had remained with the body till that hour had gone away we took up our position at the foot of the bed. The face of the dead man was unchanged. It smiled. The wrinkle which we knew so well was firmly marked, and the countenance looked altogether so natural that it would not have surprised us if our dead friend had opened his eyes and laughed at us. Yet the memory of his profound thoughts weighed upon us, and we felt ourselves surrounded by the atmosphere of his genius. The body of such a man may be stilled by death, but the man himself remains, and not without fear can one remain in his presence. We spoke about him softly; we recalled those wonderful maxims of his which threw such a clear light on many of the dark problems of life.

"'I can almost fancy I hear him speak,' whispered my companion, and at the mere thought we became still more uneasy, as we sat quite still, our eyes fixed on the motionless, smiling face. Suddenly we felt weak and as though something oppressed us. I stammered, 'I don't know what is the matter, but I assure you I am sick.' Thereupon my companion suggested that we should go into the adjoining room and leave the door open, and I took his advice. Taking with us one of the candles, we sat down at the further end of the other room in such a manner that we had a full view of the bed and of the dead man.

"Still, however, a strange uneasiness possessed us. It seemed as though we were wholly enthralled by the disembodied genius of the dead philosopher. All at once we heard a slight noise in the death chamber. We looked toward the body, and then quite distinctly both of us saw something white roll over the bed, fall on the carpet and vanish under a sofa. At the sight we sprang to our feet, terrified beyond measure. Our hearts beat wildly. I spoke first.

"'Did you see it?'

"'Yes, I saw it.'

"'Isn't he dead, then?'

"'He must be.'

"'What are we to do?'

"'We must see what it means,' was my companion's hesitating reply.

"I took our light, led the way into the death chamber and then cast a hasty look around. Nothing stirred, and I approached the bed. The next moment, however, a great terror seized me, for I saw that Schopenhauer was no longer smiling. His face, on the contrary, presented a horrible appearance, for his lips were tightly pressed together, and in his cheeks there were two great hollows. I stammered, 'He is not dead,' and I stood staring at him as though bereft of my senses.

"Thereupon my companion took the other candle and stooped down, and in a moment or two he touched my arm, but did not utter a word. I looked where he pointed, and I saw on the ground beside the sofa something white that gleamed strangely on the dark carpet, and I saw at once what it was. It was Schopenhaur's false teeth, and they seemed to be in the act of biting. As the body had decayed the fastening that held the teeth in position had gradually become so loose that they dropped from the mouth and rolled from the bed on to the floor."

No Waste in the Ox.

It is remarkable to what an extent the ox, when slaughtered, is utilized. Not so very long ago fully 40 per cent of the carcass was wasted. It may be said that today nothing is wasted; everything, from the horns to the tail, is turned into money. The blood is used in the refining of sugar, or is hardened and employed in the manufacture of doorknobs and handles; the skin goes to the tanner; the horns and hoofs are turned into combs and buttons, the shinbones into backs of clothesbrushes. The bones of the fore feet are worth $25 a ton, being made into collar buttons, umbrella handles and various novelties, after the marrow has been boiled out of them. The small bones are burned instead of coal. From each foot a considerable quantity of oil is extracted; the tail is made into soup. The hair goes to the mattress maker and upholsterer; the fat to oleo makers; the intestines are used as sausage wrappers or are sold to goldbeaters. Even the undigested stuff in the stomach is turned to account, being made into paper. If anything is left over, it is turned into glue or is put on land as a fertilizer.—New York World.

Knew His Business.

One of the senate doorkeepers stationed in the lobby next to the marble room had on one occasion just warned a visitor not to smoke the cigar which he carried in his hand. At that moment the electric bells sounded a call for a vote, and a certain senator hastened in from a nearby committee room. He was puffing violently on a long black cigar.

"Why don't you warn that man?" asked the visitor.

"Because I know my business," answered the custodian of the door. "That is the man who made the rule."

An Unpleasant Walk.

"The right of burial," says The East London Church Chronicle, "in the churchyard of a parish in the north of London is being keenly disputed by the rector of the parish. Addressing his congregation on the subject the other Sunday, he wound up with the following: 'In fine, if you submit to this outrageous imposition, then in a few years, when our call to rest shall come, we shall have to walk over five miles to find graves for ourselves.'

"This, if we remember rightly, was the distance St. Denis, who carried his head under his arm, walked on his way to Paris."

FORCED TO CONFESS.

CONSCIENCE STRICKEN CRIMINALS WHO COULDN'T KEEP SILENT.

Remarkable Instances of Acknowledgment of Guilt by Persons Who Were Not Suspected a Danger That Exists For All Wrongdoers.

"He went to the authorities and told the story of his crime quite in spite of himself. His conscience proved too strong for him, and, though there was no risk of the police tracking him, it compelled him to give himself up."

So observed a judge in a sensational murder trial. The criminal had escaped. He was not even suspected, and he had plenty of money. Everything was in readiness for his departure to a distant land where he had bought a comfortable business. But on the very eve of his going, on the way home from saying goodby to some friends, his conscience played him false, and the conviction seized upon him that he must confess. This danger exists for all wrongdoers.

A painful impression was produced in a big country town a year or two back by a voluntary confession made by one of its most respected inhabitants. From being a small shopkeeper he had risen to accumulate wealth, and a crowning honor seemed to have been bestowed upon him when he was elected to a high local office. Instead it in a way proved his undoing. He had something on his mind, and now, feeling himself to be unworthy of the good fortune that had come to him, he felt bound to unburden himself.

He accordingly went to the proprietor of a local newspaper, intending to arrange for the printing of a confession. That gentleman, astounded at the other's seeming madness in unnecessarily branding himself, refused to insert the matter. But the man was not to be thwarted. He called a meeting together and there calmly announced that he had originally started in business with capital that had been stolen. Naturally he thus did himself immense harm, but he had the satisfaction of being at peace with his conscience.

In a big London establishment a strange scene was recently enacted. A lady and gentleman alighted from a carriage and, entering, inquired for a certain department. Seated at the counter, the pair were inspecting some goods when, looking round, the lady turned pale.

"Have—have you made any alterations in your premises since a few years ago?" she asked of the assistant.

"Yes, madam," answered he. "This used to be the book department."

The lady seemed about to faint. Her husband was greatly alarmed.

"Don't stop me. Send for the manager," directed the distressed woman.

When that surprised individual appeared, the lady told him how some time before she had on three separate days stolen books from the counters there. She calmed down when permitted to pay for the volumes and to contribute double their value to the provident fund of the firm.

One of the most dramatic confessions ever made occurred in Australia in a church during a service on New Year's eve. Some years previously an old farmer known to carry much money on his person had been murdered on that very day, and a certain minister, who had been a lifelong friend of his, always on the anniversary of the dark deed made some public allusion to the happening. On this occasion, to the horror of the congregation, when the death of the old man was referred to an individual sitting in the midst of the people gave a sudden cry and, rising to his feet, said solemnly and distinctly, "I killed him."

On the matter being investigated this turned out to be true. The man was one of a number who had been employed to search for the missing farmer. He found him partially stunned by a fall and was tempted to rob him, knowing that the deed would be attributed to others. The old man, however, regained his senses, a fierce struggle ensued, and the farmer was slain. The murderer had never troubled at all about the affair. But the young woman to whom he was engaged persuaded him on this night at the end of the year to go to church, and it was there that his conscience got the better of him.

"People come in here and confess to all sorts of things," explained a police station official. "Many of those 'confessions' are false, more particularly those made under the influence of drink. I knew of one woman who whenever she had indulged too freely would come in shedding copious tears and accuse herself of having thrown a neighbor's child into a canal.

"One man confessed first and committed the deed afterward. Very unsteadily he walked in and said he gave himself up for smashing a big plate glass window. The charge proved a false one, but the next day he was brought in sober, having been caught in the act of breaking a large window of a draper's shop. On her 'night out' a young servant girl once came timidly just inside the door and asked to be taken up for poisoning a cat."

The misappropriation by a certain solicitor of the trust money of his clients was brought to light in a most extraordinary manner. The man had very cleverly stolen thousands of pounds, and only at his death would the fact have become known. He entertained very extensively and was usually a light hearted host. One evening, however, he had a strange depression of spirits. He told his wife he must go to his room or he should be compelled to say something that would ruin him. He departed, and his wife was doing her best to make up for his absence when, pale and shaking, the unfortunate man stalked into the room.

Addressing his wondering guests, he said: "I can keep it to myself no longer. This house, my horses and carriages, the wine you have been drinking, everything has been bought with money that I have stolen from those who put their trust in me." His conscience had blurted out the fatal truth, and he was a ruined man.—Cassell's Saturday Journal.
